

-For Immediate Release-

Huntley, Illinois – (February 6, 2008) – Update on Snow Removal Efforts

As of 1:00 p.m., according to the National Weather Service, Huntley has received approximately 7.5 inches of snow, 20-30 mph winds, blowing and drifting snow, all of which are causing near whiteout conditions. The storm is expected to continue into this evening bringing total snow accumulation up to 14 inches.

The Village of Huntley is requesting residents to use extreme caution when going out in this storm and to stay indoors if possible. Snow removal crews have worked long hours while plowing and clearing the 125+ miles (the same distance between Huntley and Bloomington, Illinois!) of maintained streets throughout the Village of Huntley.

The Village of Huntley strives to provide the best service possible, and appreciates the patience and understanding of residents while we continue with our snowplowing efforts.

In an effort to keep phone lines open for emergencies, concerns regarding snow removal and mailboxes can be sent by email to: ddebartolo@huntley.il.us. Please provide your name address, phone number and nature of concern. All emails will be responded to in a timely manner.
